DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
2. Claims 1-5,9,10, and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Custer et al in view of Hudson et al, as applied in the rejection beginning on page 2 of paper number 23.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed February 19, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

a. Applicant argues that although Hudson may disclose a compressible wafer backing member of a high friction material, the backing member is not a flexible member forming a boundary of a pressurizable chamber; and that there is no motivation to combine the backing member by Hudson with the carrier head of Custer.

i. However, Hudson et al discloses that it is well known to use a high friction material between the wafer and the carrier to inhibit movement between the wafer and the carrier. Clearly, in the environment of the Custer et al apparatus, it is desirable that the compressible wafer backing material, which is a flexible member forming a boundary of a pressurizable chamber, be capable of inhibiting movement between the wafer and the carrier, since movement between the flexible member and the wafer can cause excessive wear on the flexible member. Hudson et al simply teaches that movement between the carrier and the wafer may be prevent by using a high friction material therebetween.

b. Applicant argues that the examiner's reasoning that whether of not the outer surface of the membrane is rougher than the inner surface is an improper rejection.

i. However, the examiner does not agree with this reasoning. Clearly from applicant's disclosure, providing a roughen outer surface in order to prevent relative rotation between the wafer and the carrier is the inventive concept. Applicant's broad recitation of the outer surface of the membrane being rougher than the inner surface does not adequately recite the invention, since the outer surface of the membrane could be rougher than the inner surface, and yet still not prevent relative movement between the carrier and the membrane. In other words, applicant could take a conventional membrane and smooth the inside, in order to make the outer surface rougher than the inner surface. Therefore, whether the outer surface is rougher than the inner surface is an obvious matter of choice and structural design to one having ordinary skill in the art. However, taking a conventional membrane and roughening the outer surface in order to make it rougher than the inner surface is an inventive concept.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 11,13,14, and 17 are allowed.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

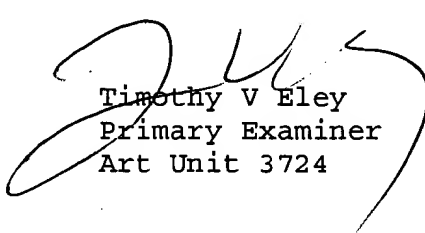

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
